SMITH ROOTERS LEAD A BIG DEMONSTRATION

INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE TO GET UNDERWAY SATURDAY AT 3:00

Board Of Management Holds Final Meeting Friday Evening

RUMORS HEARD ABOUT CONTRACTS

Team Managers Have Until Friday To File Contracts

The board of management of the Y. M. C. A. Industrial league will meet at the Y. M. C. A. Friday evening to put the final touches on the plans for opening of the city league season Saturday at Malone park at three o'clock when the Alabama Power company meets the Louisville and Nashville shops in the first game of a double bill, the Albany-Decatur Daily playing the Decatur Cornice and Roofing company in the night cap affair.

Three of the four clubs have been organized several weeks but will be materially strengthened for the opening day engagement. The Decatur Cornice and Roofing company team is just getting started and very little real dope is available on the club. The team is known, however, to number several former stars in its personnel, including Vinson, former pitcher and shortstop of the Trinity club and others.

Many rumors have been circulated during the past few days regarding signing of players by the various teams. Inasmuch as contracts are not required to be in the office of the secretary before Friday evening, team managers are taking their own sweet time about returning contracts and league officials today professed to have no real knowledge of how the teams will line up.

Each club will be permitted to carry 15 men under contract.

S. D. Edwards, of the Y. M. C. A., who is league supervisor and first assistant to President H. R. Davis, stated that he and B. L. Malone, owner of the park, were completing all park arrangements to handle a big crowd Saturday. They will do some work on the diamond and hope to have the field fast for Saturday. Umpires for the opening tilt have not yet been announced.

Dr. Violette Will Deliver Address

A special attraction for the Sunday services of the First Christian church, will be an address at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, by Dr. E. E. Violette, of Illinois, general evangelist of the Christian church. Dr. Violette will come up from Hartselle, where he is now associated with Rev. J. H. Hill in a revival meeting at the First Christian church of Hartselle.

Merchants Get Your Copy For Saturday New

Two birds with one stone is the object this Saturday in getting to press early. First we want to serve the advertisers in a manner beneficial for the Saturday afternoon and evening trade, next we want the Daily in the homes of the readers when they return from the opening games of the city league doubleheader.

All church announcements and advertising copy should be in Friday afternoon. Do not ask for advertising after 10 o'clock Saturday morning if you want to get to the homes of Albany-Decatur at an early hour.

The Advertising Manager will call. We thank you.

Egg Situation Is Discussed By Deal

During his short stay in the Twin Cities Wednesday, E. L. Deal of Florence, county farm agent for Lauderdale County, state that just at present one of the most valuable plan for farmers and egg consumers is the plan of the state department of agriculture for getting fresh eggs to the tables of their consumers.

Mr. Deal was on his way home from Toronto where he attended the annual convention of Rotarians in the United States and Canada. "There is no doubt about the state's requiring that eggs be tested according to the law as to their soundness," said Mr. Deal. "But that will work a hardship upon no one. More eggs will be demanded the more wholesome they are. The plan to send eggs direct to the consumers, instead of allowing them to be hauled around by 'hunters,' for days, figures show, will save about 20 per cent of the eggs," stated Mr. Deal.

Names Committee On Traction Plans

Following an agreement reached at the recent meeting between citizens and officials of Albany and Decatur and officials of the Alabama Traction company, to have a committee appointed by officials of the chamber of commerce, to work out a plan for adjusting matters between the cities and the street car company, the following committeemen have been named: W. W. Rahm, chairman, Carl D. Patterson, A. A. Hardage, W. A. Bibb, Mayor James A. Nelson and Clyde Hendrix.

Mr. Rahm stated that the committee would be called together at an early date.

EGG REGULATIONS ARE EXPLAINED BY STATE AGENT HERE

Oswalt On Inspection Trip Through The Tennessee Valley

TELLS DEALERS ABOUT THE LAW

Rules Adopted By The Alabama Board Of Agriculture

J. H. Oswalt, whose home is in Fayette, but whose headquarters are in Montgomery with the Alabama Department of agriculture, is in this section of the state in the interests of the farmers, Mr. Oswalt being a state inspector of the state department of agriculture and industries.

He was here for the particular purpose of examining the content of some soda-water complained of in a neighboring town. Mr. Oswalt stated that it was his duty to examine all products intended for human consumption. Mr. Oswalt travels through the country in a Ford.

Regulations Explained.

One of the major missions of Mr. Oswalt at this season of the year is to acquaint dealers in eggs with the recent regulations adopted by the state board of agriculture governing the care and sale of eggs in Alabama. The official stated that all who dealt in eggs in Alabama. The official said eggs sold for a profit were required to pay a state license of $100.

"Farmers and other producers of eggs," said Mr. Oswalt "are not required to secure a license for the purpose of selling or trading in eggs produced by them; provided they sell to licensees only. The said license shall be in evidence at the time of sale, which may be carried on the person or affixed to the car, truck, or conveyance in which eggs are transported."

In speaking further of Alabama's egg regulations, Mr. Oswalt said: "The first licensed buyers of eggs (the hucksters, the local retail merchant, or others) shall candle every lot of eggs that he buys (this should be done before settlement is made).

"All licensees shall keep their egg license conspicuously displayed at all times in places of business.

"The licensee shall discard all eggs known as added, mouldy, black rots, white rots, blood rings, adherent yolks, eggs with bloody or green whites, eggs incubated beyond blood ring stage, or eggs incubated for a period of five days or more, and all other eggs commonly classed as inedible.

"The license shall pay only for good, edible eggs.

"The license shall return to the producer, if requested or if possible, the 'rejects' for the producer's own examination.

"Every person engaged in the business of buying eggs in this state for resale or consignment shall provide and maintain an adequate place for the accurate handling of eggs and a suitable place for the proper handling of eggs which are intended to be used for human consumption.

"Good eggs must be kept in a cool dry place at a temperature not exceeding 60 degrees F. unless shipped within 48 hours. If held longer than 48 hours they must be recandled before shipping. If kept at a temperature of from 40 degrees to 60 degrees F., they must be recandled before 7 days. If kept below 40 degrees F no recandling is necessary.

"All dirty, washed, checks, and cracks shell eggs must be shipped in crates stenciled that they contain dirty, washed, crack, or check shell eggs."

MRS. JEFFERY HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Ran From Flames And Was Rescued From The Floods

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Jeffery of Tokyo, Japan, are guests of Mrs. Jeffery's sister, Mrs. Florence Forbes, 1620 13th avenue. Mr. Jeffery, an attaché of the American Embassy at Tokyo has just completed a trip around the world via Suez and Paris.

Mrs. Jeffery had a most thrilling escape during the recent earthquake September 1st in Yokohama, while standing in a narrow street. In thirty seconds the whole business section was razed. Every house was down, thousands lay dying. By a miracle she was uninjured.

Alone in a secluded spot, she first smelled fire and after climbing over two blocks of fallen buildings she ran a mad race against a thousand fires and escaped to the hills. Once, while rushing through a street that was submerged in water she was rescued from a deep crack where she had fallen. Luckily, neither Mr. nor Mrs. Jeffery suffered any injuries except minor ones.

They have brought many curios and a goodly collection of photographs of the earthquake. 57,773 unfortunate Japanese perished in a park, surrounded by store houses of government clothing. They had taken refuge there from their homes in the slums.

Mrs. Forbes extends an invitation to all her friends and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Jeffery to call on Friday, June 27th from 3 to 5 and 8 to 10 p. m. to meet Mr. and Mrs. Jeffery.

Favorable for growth and cultivation and much work accomplished though fields continued grassy locally. All crops improved. Corn, potatoes, pastures minor crops and fruits mostly fair to good. Tests Are to Be Made For Disease

On their own initiative, a number of local firms have asked the Tennessee Valley laboratory, to examine their employes for the presence of communicable diseases.

Dr. Perolio the director of the laboratory, stated today, that he would comply with the request of the firms, where the employes came to the laboratory for the tests. He said that efforts would be made, especially, to locate typhoid germs and those of dysentery. Also he stated tests would be made for tuberculosis. It was pointed out that many people apparently perfectly well may be "typhoid carriers."

The usual tests as made at other places for communicable diseases will be made by Dr. Perolio.

CAMPS OF THE RIVAL CANDIDATES BROADCASTING COUNTER CLAIMS

Each Optimistic As Success Is Seen For Half Dozen Or More Contenders

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, June 26—Apparently optimistic the McAdoo managers insisted they had accurate information that all delegates pledged to McAdoo would be faithful to the last.

Assurance that the Kansas delegation would go over to McAdoo when needed seemed to strengthen the belief among his lieutenants that he would muster the necessary two thirds to insure his nomination by Saturday night.

Mr. McAdoo remained in his hotel suite again today, conferring in rapid succession with various political lieutenants and delegates.

Watch Ralston.

"Watch Ralston begin to climb about the sixth ballot." This was the word that the Hoosier senator's backers began today to pass out after many quiet talks with delegates and leaders, which lasted late last night and were taken up again today.

Another tip being passed by the Ralston crowd is that the senator's first gain will be from the middle western states which are divided now between McAdoo and other candidates.

They explain that several of these states, which contain many Ralston supporters, are bound by unit rule, or instructions to vote for candidates many on the delegations really are not for, but that they must carry out their instruction. This plan is in keeping with the desire of Thomas Taggart in charge of the Ralston candidacy. He says he doesn't want any delegates to vote for Ralston and then have to go back home and explain why he deserted the candidate whom he was instructed to support.

Ralston's supporters hope that this vote, spread, will start in the middle west and grow steadily in all directions. For that reason they are cementing friendships, particularly in Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Oklahoma, Kentucky and Ohio.

If they can start a break in these states they believe they can get their strength in all directions.

Smith Supporters Busy.

Smith supporters divided into three groups today, all bent upon clinching his nomination for the presidential ticket.

One squadron, headed by Franklin D. Roosevelt, went to Madison Garden ready for the nominating speech to be delivered by Mr. Roosevelt and to make the best of the demonstration fixed to break in thundering tones when the address is concluded.

Another attachment was on duty at Smith's headquarters, receiving callers there and attending to routine business, while their division was spread over the city among the states.

LONG DEMONSTRATION GREET THE NOMINATION OF McADOO

Supporters Go Wild When Senator Phelan "Names His Man"

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, June 26—It was evident that the convention did not take the Robinson nomination very seriously, but no particular demonstration was attempted in his behalf and the delegates were plainly waiting to see what would happen when California, in line, launched the real battle with the nomination of William Gibbs McAdoo.

Chairman Walsh called former Senator James D. Phelan to the stand, and the Californians took that for the signal to start a preliminary burst. Red starred and banded "bear" flags of the "Californian" republic, now the state flag, leaped up among the McAdoo supporters and there was a considerable tumult and a lot of shouting car W. Underwood's anti-Klan declaration in the democratic convention yesterday when he was placed in nomination was reflected in overnight claims that he had gained material advantage in the struggle for the presidential nomination.

Those in closest touch with his campaign and the results of quiet canvassing of general sentiment for him among the delegates said there had been a distinct increase in Underwood talk during the night.

It was explained that no real showing of this strength was to be expected of this strength was to be expected.

TENTATIVE DRAFT OF 2 PLANKS READY

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, June 26—A tentative draft of the democratic platform containing alternative proposals of the Ku Klux Klan and the league of nations was submitted today to the platform sub-committee of eleven.

It was prepared by Chairman Homer S. Cummings and Senator T. Pittman of Nevada on the basis of discussions which continued before the sub-committee until an early hour this morning.

Immediately after the sub-committee assembled it summoned Owen D. Young, of New York, for a brief discussion of his plank proposing American cooperation with other nations through the league of nations or other associations, criticizing the present administration for its foreign policy and denouncing the present administration for its foreign policy and denouncing the use of unofficial observers abroad.

William Jennings Bryan presided in the absence of Chairman Cummings, who with Senator Pittman, had remained up all night whipping the platform draft into shape.

Mr. Bryan was summoned from the committee room by a spokesman for William G. McAdoo, one of the candidates for the presidential nomination with whom he conferred briefly.

The sub-committee hoped to conclude its work before night and it was planned to present the finished draft to the entire platform committee late in the day. It was hoped to have the platform ready for consideration by the convention tomorrow.

Whether there will be a fight on the floor over the Klan and league issues depends, leaders said, on the action of these two questions by the full committee.

There was considerable committee discussion of the plank dealing with

ALL KINDS OF NOISE MAKING DEVICES IN THE SMITH PARADE

Children and Grown-Up Folks March As Band Plays New York Airs

DEMONSTRATION BY McADOO MEN

Second Demonstration Given Today For The Californian

(Associated Press)

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, N. Y., June 26—Having given a renewed but brief demonstration for William G. McAdoo, the democratic national convention today plunged into a rip roaring demonstration for Alfred E. Smith.

Like the principal demonstration of yesterday, the Smith demonstration was aided and pushed along by a complete organization of demonstrators, hundreds of whom marched into the hall from the outside bearing banners and noise making devices. Galleries and the guest sections, obviously let up a continuous series of yells, howls and whistles.

No sooner had Franklin D. Roosevelt finished his speech, placing the New York governor in nomination, than the racket broke loose. Bands and rooters armed with megaphones, cheer leaders, singers and others with all the equipment of professional demonstrators burst out into the jammed aisles and began a procession about the hall.

From points of observation on the speaker's stand, it appeared that probably half the delegate space was taking part in the demonstration, either by contributing to the marching parties, which bore various state standards, or by standing on chairs and waving flags and joining in the cheering.

Only Half Participate.

The other sections of the delegate space, apparently interested in looking over the show, stood up too but gave no evidence of joining the Smith movement.

In the machinery of the demonstration every device seen before and many new ones appeared. Children as young as three and four years old, were used, some of them were dressed as ragmuffins, others as newbies. All of them had automobile license plates hung around their necks, bearing the words "Al Smith."

The fathers, who presumably had rented the children out for the occasion, tried to balance some of them on the high rail about the speaker's stand, 15 feet above the floor, with the result that the youngsters were scared to death and bellowed lustily.

After some experiments, the children were removed.

Although state standards were carried into the procession, the delegate space remained well filled, while it was going on. The galleries, the professional demonstrators and the rooters, who had packed into the galleries, up under the rafters and into every nook on the floor, made the bulk of the noise and at times, actually drowned out the band.

Roosevelt Halts Demonstration

At the hour and a quarter mark, Mr. Roosevelt waved to his lieutenants on the floor to quiet the demonstration. Senator Walsh began hammering with the gavel and Mr. Roosevelt was lifted up beside him. Supported on his crutches, he raised a hand for silence and slowly the great hall began to quiet down.

Anna Case, the Metropolitan star, was brought to the front of the platform and brought the crowd at last to complete order by singing "The Star Spangled Banner."

Most of the demonstrators remained in the hall and joined in the

THE Big-Six Touring is a seven-passenger car—not merely a seven-passenger body mounted on a five-passenger chassis.

It was designed and built for seven-passenger service—with a motor of ample power and stamina for seven-passenger satisfaction.

Then, too, with the auxiliary seats folded away, the Big-Six becomes the most desirable five-passenger car in which you have ridden, with room enough for all the luggage you will ever need.

Big-Six appearance is attractive, distinctive, and in good taste. Its performance, acceleration, flexibility and

No car, regardless of price, surpasses it in quality or completeness of equipment.

If a smaller manufacturer or assembler were to build the Big-Six—of equal quality and workmanship—his price would be $3,500—perhaps more.

But Big-Six overhead is distributed over six times as many units as are built by any Big-Six competitor, hence Big-Six cost and selling price are surprisingly low.

Below: JOHN H. CLARKE & M. HERRIOT

Premiers Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, and M. Herriot, of France, have reached a complete accord on the Dawes reparations plan and will call an allied conference in the middle of July to accept it. Ex-King George of Greece has left his exile in Bucharest, Rumania, and gone to Paris to get a job as scenario writer. Having found it impossible, he says, to live on the $100,000 allowed him by the Greek Government. Former United States Supreme Court Justice John H. Clarke, in a speech in New York, declared that unless some substitute was speedily found for war the social order of the United States, its religion and its civilization would be destroyed.

Plate Marks.

Plate marks or hall marks are the legal impressions made on watch cases, jewelry, gold and silver plate. In Great Britain the marks are, with a few exceptions, optional. The plate marks are of four kinds. The standard or quality mark, the mark of the particular office where the assay is made, the mark signifying the date, and the maker's private mark.

chorus, however. The aisles still were crowded solidly and sergeant-at-arms, who went to work to clear them, made little progress.

Breaks Out Again.

Mr. Roosevelt retired from the platform, apparently believing the demonstration at an end, but just then a band, somewhere around the edge of the big amphitheater, struck up "East side, Westside" and the whole performance started over again. The lithographs of Governor Smith and the state standards began their mobbing progress about the hall. The yell leaders in the galleries rallied their groups into action. The sirens were set shrieking and the demonstration was on in full force.

To help convention officials restore order, Mr. Roosevelt returned to the stage and personally requested those on the floor that they remain quiet and let the convention go on.

Most of the demonstrators appeared ready to follow his advice for they were tired and hot after their long and fervid labors, but a band far over to the right, kept up a throbbing march and defied all efforts to quiet it.

Chairman Walsh was conferring with his colleagues on the convention platform on the problem of clearing the aisles. The hundreds who had trooped into the delegates' arena to stage the Smith demonstration stood in solid phalanx in every aisle so that the sergeant at arms and the officers could scarcely move an inch through the dense jam. Finally they appealed to the police and got results.

The band quieted down, at last. The demonstrators began to roll up their Smith banners and those who did not belong to the convention personnel were thrown out through a dozen exits.

It was just an hour and a half from the time the demonstration started at Mr. Roosevelt's mention of the name of "our own Alfred Smith" that Chairman Walsh directed the secretary to continue with the call of the roll.

Delaware Names Saulsbury
Delaware was next on the list and Senator Bayard took the speaker's stand to nominate Willard Saulsbury, former Delaware senator.

At the conclusion of the nominating speech, the Delaware delegation stood on its chairs and cheered and there was handclapping from many parts of the hall.

Florida was next on the list, but it yielded to Missouri and Charles Hay, of St. Louis, rose to second the nomination of McAdoo.

Nominates Ralston.

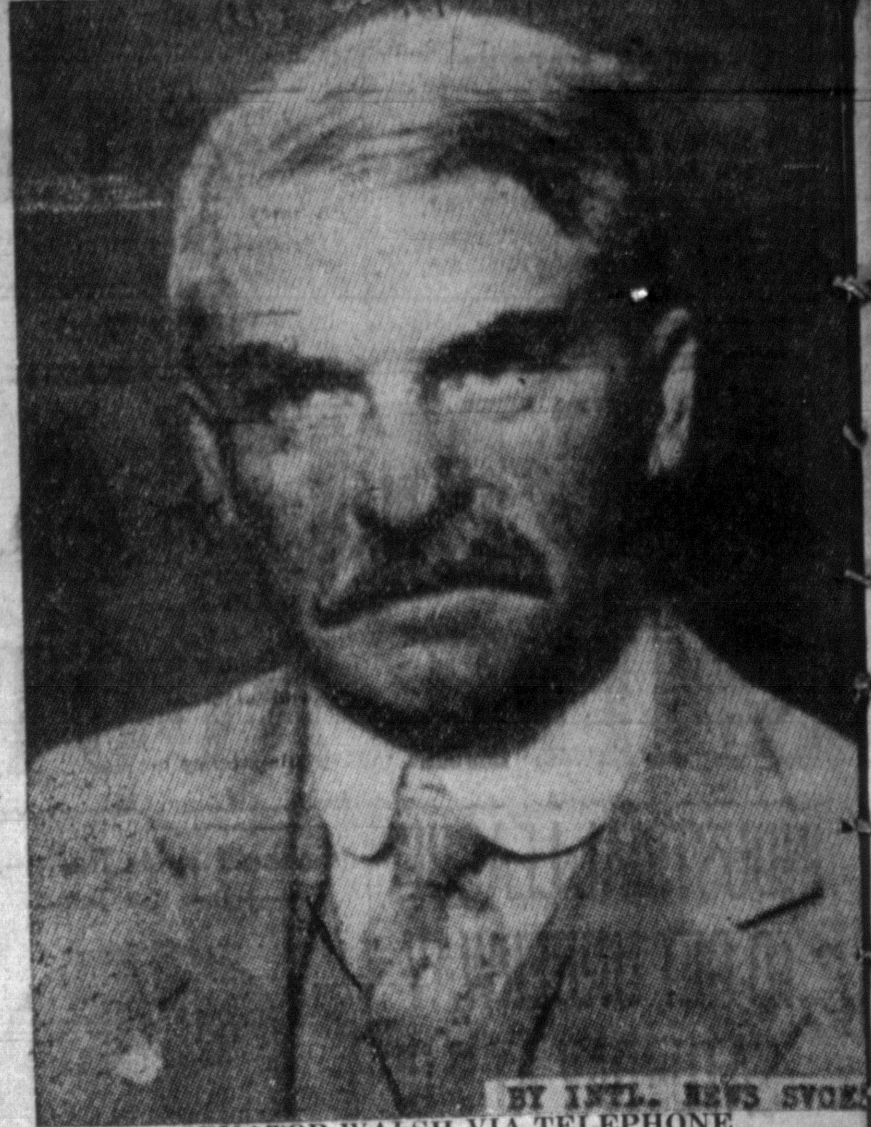

Frederick Van Nuys nominated Senator Ralston, of Indiana, afterwards Congressman W. A. Ayres nominated Governor Davis of Kansas. Planning to hurry business toward the point of nomination, convention managers were planning to hold sessions through until all nominations were in and then probably take a brief recess and get started on the balloting.

Such proceedings might make it necessary to begin balloting before the platform committee makes its report and there was some question as to whether such a plan could be carried out.

At all events it was expected the platform would be ready tomorrow and with some contest in prospect over some of the planks, balloting for president if not begun tonight, could not be reached until Saturday.

Platform builders worked steadily today while the convention was in session. The convention opened at 10:30 eastern daylight time and worked on throughout the afternoon, without stopping for rest or food, in an effort to complete a long string of nominating speeches.

Kentucky, the next state on the roll call, yielded to Oregon and Mrs. Alexander Thompson, of Portland, seconded the nomination of McAdoo. Speaking up in a voice of surprising power she got the convention cheering and several times brought the McAdoo supporters into action.

A DAILY PRAYER—Teach us to pray for Thou presence, for we know Thou alone dwelling with us and fit us to dwell with Thee.

Someone might offer a reward for information as to what the republican platform really means.

It were better to get dust in ones eyes than try to throw dust into the eyes of others.

The farm-labor party doubtless will be forgotten in the political mix-up.

What manner of men are these in the Rhode Island senate? We had imagined that solons were immune from any kind of gas attack.

It does one good to watch the repair gang at work on the Bee Line highway. Maintenance probably is the most important feature of road systems. Too rarely do we realize it.

David Lawrence regarded as a reliable political observer, who is taking a close up view of the Democratic convention in New York, declares that the issue in the coming presidential campaign will be "honesty," if the Democrats can so make it. He says that the basis of the keynote address of Senator Pat Harrison was his appeal to the country to look upon the wrong doings of the Republicans and compare them with the record for honesty made by the Wilson administrations.

With the exception of the mighty response drawn out by his references to Woodrow Wilson, wherever Harrison created a demonstration in the New York convention it was when he laid bare some scandalous thing done or allowed by highly placed leaders in the Republican party.

Harrison pointed the finger of scorn at Albert B. Fall, and contrasted the failure of Republicans to even attempt to punish Fall, to their flat failure to find anything wrong in the conduct of Democrat, Senator Wheeler, who conducted the investigation against Daugherty and others. Harrison showed many cases of where the people's money and their property interests were not looked after properly, and he challenged the world to point to one speck of corruption as practiced by the Democrats while in control of the government under Wilson.

All credit for the exposure of Secretary Fall's official record while in the cabinet of a Republican President, Senator Harrison gives to the Democratic party.

Senator Harrison states the case of his party against the "oil" party in a few sentences at the opening of his keynote address by declaring that just as 48 years ago Democrats at St. Louis sought to purge "corruption from the public service," that Democrats of the present attempt the same thing. "There was corruption then" declared Harrison, "there is a saturnalia of corruption now. There were disgraced public officials then, repudiated by their party, and under arrest; but today Fall goes unmolested on his ranch in New Mexico; Daugherty sat with Presidential approval in the convention at Cleveland, and Daugherty's attorney was chairman of the committee created to oil the stream roller of the worst boss-ridden convention of a generation."

As relentless an attack as Mr. Harrison made on the manner the Republican leaders have regarded corruption when their partisans were concerned in is contained in the following excerpt from his keynote address:

"In this campaign let the conscienceless leaders of this administration deride investigation. Let them accuse the Congress of deteriorating; let them continue to shield those who conspired against the government; but in this dark drama the American people know and prefer the highly patriotic and cleansing work of Thomas J. Walsh to the foul infamy and thievery of Albert J. Fall.

"Nothing in burlesque or opera bouffe is comparable to the scene recently enacted at Cleveland in the efforts of the silent Sphinx of the Potomac to exile and expatriate those Republican Senators who dared to oppose his mandate. It is somewhat a pathetic story—the treatment there accorded our Republican senatorial friends.

But yesterday the word of Caesar might have stood against the world;
Now lies he there, and none so poor to do him reverence.

"They dared to vote an investigation of a member of the President's official family, and they are penalized for their decency.

"They dared disregard the protest of the world profiteers to respond to the appeal of the soldiers who fought our battles on the fields of France, and they are punished for their justice.

"By every device known to trained camoufleurs, by every subtle process of legerdemain, the Republican nominee, in true pharisaical fashion, sought to divorce himself from his former comrades in arms. The plan is obvious; the plot is futile. Neither the President nor his Falstaffian army, headed by General Butler and Sergeant Stearns, can conceal the ugly fact that the Cleveland convention was the most highly organized, boss-ridden and oleaginous ever held in America. The American people will not be deceived. They will not permit themselves to be used as pawns in a game of hide and seek."

The supremacy of the South as the world's great cotton producing region is threatened by the development of the cotton industry in other lands, and in other parts of this country. Once the south had a monopoly of cotton production. Then the Egyptian cotton became a factor in supplying British mills. Mexico is producing in its Laguna district around Torreon almost enough cotton to supply the needs of Mexican mills and the industry is a growing one there. Arizona has extensive cotton fields in its Salt River Valley and in other irrigated farming sections, and California is increasing its Imperial Valley acreage and yield of cotton.

Thus far the cotton production outside the south has not had very pronounced effect upon the demand or the price of Southern cotton, but there is a possibility that such an effect will be felt before a great while. The south is placed in the position not only of fighting against outside competition, but also of fighting conditions in its own cotton fields that are likely to reduce cotton production and to work serious harm to the industry.

The Muscle Shoals Sunday News says the great cotton consuming nations are seeking to break our monopoly in this vital product and "we may as well face the prospect of serious competition, for it is surely coming." The News thinks "the dominating position of the South in cotton culture may be maintained for another generation, and then only if we begin now to plan for cheaper production, for we assuredly will have to sell at a relatively lower price."

It is a question whether the South could produce cotton at a figure very much below its present selling price and not lose money by doing so. The cotton crop is valuable to the South only as it pays Southern farmers to produce and sell it. If they must sell their cotton crop at a loss, the industry will be worthless. If the Muscle Shoals paper is right in its conclusion, the thing the Southern farmers may have to do is not to seek a way to produce cheaper cotton, but a way to produce other crops that will pay and be as good ready-money crops as cotton has been.

At thirty cents the Southern farmer can put aside a profit from his cotton crop. If he has to sell at twenty cents, he must charge up a loss, and farming will not stand a loss of that kind for very long. The most important threat that now is directed against Southern cotton supremacy is that given by the boll weevil.—Anniston Star.

Tomb Used as Billiard Parlor.
It is unusual for a tomb to be used for any purpose other than that for which it was erected. An exception may be found in Allahabad, India, where a magnificent mausoleum, built to contain the remains of an Indian prince who was murdered by his father, has become in recent years a billiard parlor.

SMITH DROPS DEAD IN THE SHOP YARDS

Due either to the heat or heart failure, E. C. (Coon) Smith, a well known employe of the Louisville and Nashville R. R. fell dead yesterday while employed on the local coal chute trestle of the Louisville and Nashville near that company's repair shops.

The remains of Mr. Smith were sent to his former home in Cullman a few hours after his death. It is said that two carpenters, Mr. Smith and another man, were "relaying" each other in using a foot-ads on yesterday, and that the deceased had just asked his working companion to let him have the ads, when he fell dead. The body was brought at once to a local undertaker where it was embalmed for burial.

A wife and several children survive the deceased. He was well known here and all along the Louisville and Nashville railroad in this state. He was a member of the bridge repair force of the railroad and made frequent trips to points along the system. Mr. Smith's age was given at 56 years at the undertaking establishment and he is said to have been a native of Georgia. He had been making his home in Cullman for some time.

Colonel E. M. Child-birth

WHEN the Little One arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy, "Mother's Friend." Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., says:

"With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used 'Mother's Friend' and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes." Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait, start today and meanwhile write to Bradford-Rogers Co., P. O. JUDGE JOHN R. KEOUGH REVIEWS FACTS IN CASE

Tells How Tanlac Won Decision
Over Indigestion and Nervousness. Was So Miserable Duties Of Office Were a Burden.

Judge John R. Keough, Justice of the Peace, 159 North Second St., Memphis, Tenn., is another man of prominence from whom the Tanlac treatment has elicited high commendation.

"Of one thing," recently said Judge Keough, "I am convinced beyond doubt and that is, Tanlac's goodness as a stomach medicine and general tonic. Before I took it my stomach was so out of fix that even the sight of food would nauseate me. And this indigestion had me so nervous and played out that it was a burden for me to discharge the duties of my office."

"Tanlac set me right a year ago and I have had no more health troubles since. I can eat and digest just anything—even corned beef and cabbage—and my stomach and nerves are as good as a man could ask for. Tanlac will always get a good recommendation from me."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

ed until the balloting had proceeded far enough to satisfy various delegations that neither the McAdoo nor Smith movement had any real resemblance to a band wagon.

When that time came, the Underwood leaders predicted there would be a scramble to get aboard the Underwood chariot, where the original group of loyal Underwood delegates would remain throughout the early balloting ready to extend the hand of welcome to late comers.

C. C. Carlin, manager of the Underwood forces went into the convention today asserting that wholly aside from his desires and the necessities of his duty, he felt there was a real prospect for the Alabama senator to swing the convention his way in a moment that would sweep the stage clear of sectional lines.

Just when the turn he foresaw would come, however, Mr. Carlin did not care to indicate.

Davis' Friends Busy
Makers of the John W. Davis campaign for the democratic presidential nomination moved down to Madison Square Garden today, confident that their candidate would emerge toward the end of the week as the man chosen by his party to reconcile its conflicting ideas in candidates.

The West Virginian was to be placed in nomination during the day, but it was still somewhat of a mystery what would be said of him.

McAdoo Hangs On.
Determined to force the nomination of William G. McAdoo at an early stage of the democratic convention, balloting his managers settled down grimly today to the serious business of preventing a last-minute swing away of delegates.

Reports regarding the situation in various delegations were brought into McAdoo headquarters by scouts. Some indicated, it was said, that there was talk that the Californian's strength was waning. His managers insisted, however, that such reports were groundless.

Rumor had it that a dozen or more Tennessee delegates, instructed to vote as a unit for McAdoo, were talking of bolting to John W. Davis. That part of the Iowa delegation on an early ballot would swing away from McAdoo that there was dissatisfaction in other delegations that would prove costly to Mr. McAdoo.

vere plainly set to go and eager to start. Finally a feminine voice from the loyal McAdoo Georgia delegation allied on the speaker to name his man, saying "We know his record."

Phelan complied and as he shouted "William Gibbs McAdoo" at the battery of microphones before him, a roar of sound went up that was not to die away completely or even to lessen materially for more than an hour. Flags swung up everywhere (the bear flags national flags and streamers, brilliant, colored silk scarfs were tossed aloft and dined by the California and Georgia legions and loyally supported by the leather-lunged and non-partisan bandmen in their high crow's nest, the McAdoo delegates surged out into the milling parade of the aisles that marks such occasions in political conventions.

A rooster group was unmasked in the high gallery barking a chant in drum time of "Mac, Mac, Mac, will do" over and over again. The band roared away at California, "Here I Come," with the thudding clamor of the big brass drum pounding out its rhythmic, if barbaric note. Bells clanged in imitation of locomotive signals and whistles hooted like the same locomotive, blowing for a crossing.

Down in the aisles the Californians had shouldered a girl clad like Miss Columbia and waving a California flag. She was carried again and again around the hall by sweating relays of bearers. Behind her came four white-robed women straining to make their silver trumpets heard in the general confusion. Once in a while the sound of their music came faintly out of the general tumble of sound. A long white placard on tall poles was unfurled by two women of the California group. It carried the legend: "California for Wilson 1916; for McAdoo, 1924," and the women who carried it never faltered or let it down in all the hot, stifling hour or more surging through the jammed aisles that followed.

On and on the demonstration went never seeming to wane in volume. The leader bobbed up on the platform and sought frantically to establish an understanding with the rooting force in the gallery. His shrill whistle signals never got beyond the first few rows of delegates.

A girl in yellow, big and blond, climbed to the speaker's reading stand and time after time the bearers of Miss Columbia sought to crash their way to the same points of vantage, succeeding only after half a dozen charges at the platform doorway.

The other delegations, even the big New York group were on their chairs by now watching the show. Presently, out of the general confusion of McAdoo noise emerged the sound of a "Smith-Smith-Smith-Smith" drum. Roosevelt, of the Smith campaign confined by his crippled condition to his easy chair on the flank of the New Yorkers sought to stop it and was told it had started in the galleries. It had only served to excite the McAdoo shouters however.

Feature for Smith.
A Meriden (Conn.) factory superintendent's will was filed the other day, and discovery was made that he had left virtually his entire estate, valued at about $50,000, to a young man who had helped to support himself by selling newspapers. The story is that this youth had never failed to give the "lonesome old man" a smile as he passed through the factory selling his papers, and the circumstance had so impressed the latter that he had made the young man fairly independent through his will.
